Mayor Emanuel leaps into Lake Michigan at North Avenue Beach for the Polar Plunge on Sunday. NANCY STONE/TRIBUNE

Chicago Tribune

Jimmy Fallon walked into Lake Michigan on Sunday morning in the promised suit and tie, turned toward the beach, then fell back into the water, going completely under.

Mayor Emanuel ran in, then sort of laid down on his back in the slushy, 32-degree water about 10 feet from the edge of the sand on North Avenue Beach.

Speaking to the crowd just before going in, Fallon didn't exactly radiate bravado. "If you hear a scream like a little girl's, just know that Jimmy Fallon is swimming in Lake Michigan," the "Tonight Show" host said.

After the quick dip, the look on his face was "pure shock," said Mike Field, a member of the Shannon Rovers bagpipe troupe, who went in at the same time as the two celebrities. "You could almost see his eyeballs popping out."

The huge lakeside crowd braving 10-degree temperatures whooped and hollered and the two famous men emerged shortly after 10 a.m., having helped make memorable a day that organizers said would raise more than $1 million for Special Olympics Chicago. "No Diving" signs and stacks of towels lined the shores of North Avenue Beach as Fallon and Emanuel prepared to hit the water.

The celebrity-politician plunge started with a bet Emanuel made with the city's children last summer. Emanuel agreed to participate in the Polar Plunge benefiting the Special Olympics if the kids, through the Chicago Public Library system, would read more than 2 million books.

They exceeded their goal by 100,000 titles, and Emanuel, after jokingly asking for a recount, committed to entering the chilly lake.

At a news conference with Jen Kramer, president of Special Olympics Chicago, and former Bears defensive lineman Israel Idonije,

Officially PLUNGED!!!!
Thank you Chicago!!!
Thank you Mayor."

—Jimmy Fallon, tweeting a photo of himself after Sunday's dip

Emanuel expressed gratitude for his support team. "Izzy will be in the water. I'll be on his shoulders," Emanuel said.

Kramer said this year's plunge will set a fundraising record of more than $1 million with more than 3,000 plungers. Last year, about 2,300 people braved the elements.

Kramer attributed much of the credit for this year's spike to the famous duo.

"When Mayor Emanuel announced, we saw a little increase then," she said. "And when Fallon committed, that's when we saw the big increase."

Fallon entered the picture when, in an interview last month, he said he'd like to have Emanuel on as a Chicago guest. The mayor tweeted he would come on the show if Fallon would do the Plunge. Fallon said he wondered if he was being set up and asked if Chicago would have his back.

There is no word yet on when the mayor makes his "Tonight Show" appearance.

In case you don't feel guilty enough

Stephen Markley

redeye@tribune.com
@stephenmarkley

Let's face it: I'm smug about all the things I've been right about politically speaking. George W. Bush and the Iraq war would both be disasters, equality for gays and lesbians, the seriousness of global warming—the list goes on and on.

Because I'm shooting like 99.9 percent from the field on this stuff, and I'm so totally annoying about it, I'll go looking for a Great Question of Our Times that will make me feel awful when I'm 80. Unfortunately, it's probably the way we treat animals.

According to a recent piece in Scientific American, scientists now believe that elephants not only display nearly human levels of cooperative intelligence but also empathy. And they can paint better than me (seriously, watch the videos on YouTube). It's stuff like this that makes me picture my grandchildren saying, "Grandpa, how did you justify going to the Lincoln Park Zoo? How did you eat bacon? How did you do nothing and say nothing while all these feeling, thinking creatures were brutalized or enslaved for your pleasure? Also, isn't it lucky that Grandma is Academy Award-winning actress Emma Stone? What a babe."

The Oscar-snubbed documentary "Blackfish" puts this question in even finer repose. Speaking as a child who enjoyed the hell out of SeaWorld back in the day, I don't see how anyone can walk inside that place or buy a Shamu doll after watching the ways in which captivity can lead killer whales to psychosis.

So am I crazy, or is it beginning to feel like there's a sea change (boom) going on in how we talk about animals and understand animal consciousness? We have an absurd relationship with the animal kingdom, most evidenced by dog-lovers. The money, resources and passion allocated toward saving and assisting dogs is bizarre when we take pigs—a more intelligent, emotionally aware animal—and happily grind them to death in industrial processes that Jigsaw couldn't dream up in seven movies.

“The money, resources and passion allocated toward saving and assisting dogs is bizarre when we take pigs ... and happily grind them to death ...

Yet at the same time, vegetarianism and veganism are problematic ways to go about remedying this absurd relationship. I long ago made my peace with eating animals, though I try to do it less (the real problem is when I'm drunk, in which case you can point me to the nearest Taco Bell).

As a widespread solution, you can't guilt people into not eating meat any more than you can guilt them into reducing their carbon emissions.

But where does that leave those of us with the cloying suspicion that our behavior is unreflective and morally dubious? Technology? Can we engineer animals that have no sentience and then lop off their flesh while they remain brain-dead and unaware? Will someone claim PETA's $1 million prize for "test-tube meat"? I really don't know.

However, I'm all about doing the easiest things in life that make you an incrementally better person with little to no effort: be an organ donor, vote, drive less, watch political documentaries, etc.

Now we can add to that list: Never set foot in SeaWorld.

Also, if my grandchildren are reading this: Until you've tried bacon, don't judge me, you smug little bastards.

Sex assault questions spur students, alums to action at NU, U. of C.

By Rachel Cromidas | REDEYE

Two Chicago-area universities have been in the news recently as students and federal officials question how well they handle sexual assault allegations.

A Northwestern student is suing the university over claims it failed to follow up on a sexual harassment complaint she filed against a professor. Northwestern officials are disputing the student's claim. The University of Chicago is being investigated by the United States Department of Education over the way the school handles sexual assault cases. The department is opening a campus-wide investigation after it looked into a student's complaint that the university mishandled her case after she accused another student of sexual assault.

As the Northwestern lawsuit and the University of Chicago investigation get underway, alumni and staff at both schools have been circulating petitions calling on their schools to reform their sexual misconduct policies.

"We hope that the US Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights (OCR) investigation will be the catalyst to meaningful, permanent improvements in both the response to and prevention of sexual assault," reads the University of Chicago alumni petition, which was written by a group of alumni who spearheaded an effort to create a campus sexual assault policy when they were students in the 1990s.

The Northwestern petition calls for institutional reforms and also references other schools facing Title IX lawsuits and federal investigations over sexual assault policy, including Amherst College, Vanderbilt University, Dartmouth University, and the University of Chicago.

Campus sexual assault has long been a complicated and fraught problem for universities. They are required by federal law to report and address incidents, but almost all have different policies on how to do that.

A RedEye report from October found that local sexual assault advocates and university officials said many campus assault policies have been criticized for failing to adequately help students, but universities have nonetheless been slow to change.

Though universities are required to report assault allegations to the government, they are not required to report them to the police. Instead, many take disciplinary action themselves. But the effects of those actions can be inconsistent, and some advocates say they run the risk of contributing to the trauma a student who has been assaulted may already be going through.

Primary voting begins early

Chicago Tribune

Early voting starts Monday, one of several options for voters to cast a ballot in the March 18 primary election.

Folks who have already made up their minds can vote early until March 15 at dozens of locations in Chicago and the collar counties if they present a photo ID.

Voters also can cast a ballot by mail, whether or not they'll be out of town election day, if they request a ballot by March 13.

Those who haven't registered still can do so until March 15. Be sure to bring two forms of identification and be ready to cast a ballot at the same time under what's called grace period registration.

If none of those choices works, those already registered can vote in-person absentee at their local election authority offices the Sunday and Monday before the primary election.

Republicans have the most at stake, with a heated campaign for governor and contests for U.S. Senate and treasurer topping the ballot. Democratic voters, who had a successful 2012 election with President Obama headlining the ticket, don't have much to turn out for beyond some scattered state legislative contests.

29 killed in China train station attack

1 At least 29 people were killed in what authorities called a terrorist attack by Xinjiang militants at a Chinese train station. Officials said a group of knife-wielding "terrorists" from the restive Xinjiang region launched a premeditated attack at the Kunming Railway Station in China's southwest on Saturday night. More than 130 people were wounded.

Ultra-Orthodox Jews protest possible draft

2 Hundreds of thousands of ultra-Orthodox Jews rallied in Jerusalem on Sunday to protest emerging legislation that could end their sweeping exemption from military service. The country's capital was paralyzed as access to Jerusalem was blocked.

85 killed by bombs, gunmen in Nigeria

3 Suspected Islamist militants have killed at least 85 people in northeastern Nigeria, witnesses and officials said Sunday. Twin bomb blasts in the city of Maiduguri killed at least 46 people Saturday evening while, around 30 miles away, dozens of gunmen were razing a farming village, shooting dead another 39.

Gay rights groups OK'd for Boston parade

4 A gay rights group will be allowed to march in Boston's St. Patrick's Day parade, event organizers said Saturday, reversing a 20-year-long stance after the city's new mayor intervened. It was unclear if the group would be permitted to carry signs or use slogans identifying themselves as gay men and women.

Ukraine mobilizes for war

5 KIEV/BALACLAVA, Ukraine Ukraine mobilized for war Sunday and Washington threatened to isolate Russia economically, after President Vladimir Putin declared he had the right to invade his neighbor in Moscow's biggest confrontation with the West since the Cold War.

"This is not a threat: This is actually the declaration of war to my country," Ukraine's Prime Minister Arseny Yatseniuk said in English. Yatseniuk heads a pro-Western government that took power when the country's Russia-backed president, Viktor Yanukovich, was ousted last week.

Putin secured permission from his parliament Saturday to use military force to protect Russian citizens in Ukraine and told President Obama he had the right to defend Russian interests and nationals, spurning Western pleas not to intervene.

Russian forces have already bloodlessly seized Crimea, an isolated Black Sea peninsula where Moscow has a naval base. On Sunday they surrounded several small Ukrainian military outposts there and demanded the Ukrainian troops disarm. Some refused, leading to standoffs, although no shots were fired.

With Russian forces in control of majority ethnic Russian Crimea, the focus is shifting to eastern swaths of Ukraine, where most ethnic Ukrainians speak Russian as a native language.

Those areas saw more demonstrations Sunday after violent protests Saturday and for a second day pro-Moscow activists hoisted flags at government buildings and called for Russia to defend them.

Russia has staged war games with 150,000 troops along the land border, but so far they have not crossed. Kiev said Russia had sent hundreds of its citizens across the border to stage the protests.

U.S. RESPONSE

Secretary of State John Kerry will travel to Kiev on Tuesday to stress U.S. political and economic support after Russian forces' bloodless seizure of Ukraine's Crimea region, a senior U.S. official said Sunday.

Ukraine's security council ordered the general staff to immediately put all armed forces on highest alert. However, Kiev's small and under-equipped military is seen as no match for Russia's superpower might.

The Defense Ministry was ordered to stage a call-up of reserves, meaning theoretically all men up to 40 in a country with universal male conscription, though Ukraine would struggle to find extra guns or uniforms for significant numbers of them.

Winter was actually welcome when it showed up for the Hawks game at Soldier Field this weekend

What's more beautiful than the Blackhawks crushing Pittsburgh 5-1 on a snowy night in front of 62,921 fans at Soldier Field? No, it's not a trick question. The answer—at least one of them—is what you get when you hand over the RedEye Instagram account to Photo Editor Lenny Gilmore. REDEYE

“Probably the greatest setting you could ever want and going into a hockey game. What an environment, what a feeling, crowds, snow, great opponent, pace of the game is unreal. ... So it was a very memorable night.”

—Blackhawks coach Joel Quenneville

“It was a lot of fun. [Patrick Sharp and I] had a blast out there. Like I said, we felt like we could find a way to score every time we got the puck. It honestly did feel like we were playing shinny hockey in the backyard.”

1	Make a sports prediction for March.	Wichita State wins the NCAA title! They're gonna SHOCK the world! falls through wall	The Cubs will go undefeated in the regular season in March! Well, as long as they beat the Pirates on March 31. Go Cubbies?	I will regain feeling in my fingers and toes before going to my next Blackhawks game. I hope.	I will never be colder at a sporting event this month than I was at Soldier Field on March 1.	Michigan State gets its freakin' act together and wins the Big Ten tournament in Indianapolis.
2	Snow is to hockey as ...	... Chicago is to the WWE: a perfect fit.	... long lines are to Soldier Field bathrooms. I think my bathroom line started in Schaumburg! I'm still waiting to take a leak!	... Ice is to vodka. I was as chilled as a martini!	... a great high-heeled shoe is to a night out. Looks fantastic, stings a little.	... Sidney Crosby is to crying like a whiny little bit—er, baby.
3	What was U.S. Cellular Field thinking during the Hawks game at Soldier Field?	"I'm sure happy we didn't have a bunch of drunk goons in OUR ... wait, never mind."	"Those angry people could be peeing in OUR garbage cans next year. Good times. Don't eat the asparagus, please!"	"We're gonna need to stock up on hand warmers!"	"I can see it now ... ME ... FULL! Get the Hawks to play here and it could finally happen!"	"Oh boy, this is just like high school gym class all over again."
4	Welcome Jimmer Fredette to the Bulls.	Hey, Jimmer! If we can trade for J.J. Redick, the Bulls can have the all-time awkward white college player team!	Jimmer, there was a great player named D-Rose long ago. sniff He was so good when he played those three games. So good.	Welcome, and did you remember to bring earmuffs?	Hey, Jimmy. Uh, Jimma. Er, Jimmer. Yeah, a lot of us aren't gonna get that right.	Here in Chicago, we have a 3-point line. Please start utilizing it because no one else here even remotely does. Go borkers!
5	What's the Desert Diamond Cup?	A weird car race? A corporate golf thing sponsored by some kind of impotence pill?	Something my college health center gave me after an encounter with Lisa Lawless at the Lucky Lady. YIKES!	The place where I wish to place my frozen feet in since it sounds soooooo warm.	The container I'll be drinking out of all week at spring training in Arizona. Peace out, Chiberia!	A container you can drink mass amounts of alcohol out of at Punch House? Shoutout to Best Bartender Carlos Matias III.

Behind The Shield: Chicago wrestler comes home

By Ted Gruber | FOR REDEYE

So you want to be a professional wrestler?

Take it from Seth Rollins, who has jumped through more rings than you can count, that it's a long road. But after years of driving from his hometown in Iowa to the Berwyn Eagles Club, Rollins has made it to the big leagues of pro wrestling.

The 27-year-old former Chicago resident spoke to RedEye about the WWE, his time on the local wrestling circuit and what the Windy City means to him.

You had a couple of years in the WWE's NXT development organization and finally got the call-up and formed The Shield in November 2012.

What was it like when you headed up to the main WWE roster?

I think the couple of years in developmental was really starting to get me impatient. It's not a bad thing that you get that mindset because you want to be on the main roster and working with the top guys. I spent a lot of time on the independent scene honing my craft, so I thought I was ready from day one. But the time I spent in NXT was the best things that could happen in my career. It gave me the mindset that I could succeed at the highest level.

When it was time to get called up and The Shield was ready to make an impact, I was nervous, excited, but most importantly prepared for [it]. I think that preparation and confidence came across well in front of the WWE universe.

"WWE Raw" hits Chicago on Monday and this is your second home. How has Chicago helped your career?

It's pretty surreal. With our schedules, there isn't a lot of opportunities to sit back and smell the roses, as they say. Every time I come back to Chicago it's just amazing the support I have. It's amazing to think I was in the Berwyn

Eagles Club in Berwyn for [All American Wrestling]. Coming back to the area, I feel like I'm on the top of the world. It's a very satisfying feeling that I get to now wrestle in front of the biggest crowds each and every day. The crowds here are always awesome, and they have all treated me with such respect and class. It's just very special to me.

You were the second wrestler in the ring at the Royal Rumble and almost won. Now that you have gained exposure as a singles competitor, what could be in the future for Wrestlemania for you?

Heading into Wrestlemania, it's the most exciting time of the year. Right now I don't know the plans yet for The Shield or myself but I know there will be an impact made. With so many things going on right now leading up to the big show at New Orleans, there's that little extra self-push that wants you to put on the very best match each and every night.

Many have said you have the talent to become an individual star in the WWE. In five years, where do you see yourself?

Five years? I see myself as world champion. If you were in my position and you aren't saying that, something is wrong with you. I want to be holding a title, beating up John Cena and Randy Orton and headlining pay-per-views. I have the confidence and drive, and those goals would be satisfying.

BULLS 109, NEW YORK 90

Fueled by the fifth triple double of Joakim Noah's career (13 points, 12 rebounds, 14 assists), the Bulls beat the Knicks on Sunday for their ninth win in 10 games. Recently signed Jimmer Fredette even hit a bucket late in the game, setting off a United Center frenzy previously reserved for Brian "White Mamba" Scalabrine.

"It was great," Fredette said of the fan reaction. "I appreciate the support I already have. This is a sports town. They love the Bulls and their teams."

Brandon Pirri

Pirri sent packing for picks

Chicago traded forward Brandon Pirri to the Florida Panthers on Sunday for two draft picks. The Blackhawks received a third-round pick in next year's NHL draft and a fifth-round selection in the 2016 draft for Pirri. The forward tallied 11 points in 28 games with the Blackhawks this season. Chicago selected him in the second round of the 2009 draft.

That “whoosh” you heard Sunday night was me breathing a sigh of relief after the Oscars.

Good judgment prevailed and “12 Years a Slave” deservedly won Best Picture over a lousy script hidden behind amazing visuals (“Gravity”) and a lousy script hidden behind amazing female performances (“American Hustle”). Somewhat similar to when “The Hurt Locker” conquered “Avatar,” Academy voters seem to have taken a moment to think things over and voted with more than just their eyes. Which is smart, as it’s unwise to press anything on a keyboard with any part of your face.

In the night’s other major award with suspense behind it, Lupita Nyong’o (“12 Years a Slave”) defeated Jennifer Lawrence (“American Hustle”) and delivered a beautiful acceptance speech that sincerely validated everyone’s dreams and, without notes, perfectly expressed what she wanted to say, exactly how she wanted to say it. “It doesn’t escape me for one moment that so much joy in my life is thanks to so much pain in someone else’s,” she said in one of several great choices of words. This was her debut big-screen performance, and I can’t wait to see what she does next (not including her small role in “Non-Stop”).

Otherwise, the Oscars largely unfolded as everyone expected. Jared Leto (“Dallas Buyers Club”) won Best Supporting Actor and proved you can, in fact, refer to serious international conflicts and your terrible band in practically the same sentence. Matthew McConaughey won Best Actor for the same film, though even if he had lost the world would still justifiably marvel at his past few years of work. And Cate Blanchett (“Blue Jasmine”), strongly defending stories about women, won Best Actress in a field absurdly lacking its most-deserving nominees (especially Adele Exarchopoulos of “Blue is the Warmest Color” and Brie Larson of “Short Term 12”).

I’m shocked/thrilled that Spike Jonze won Best Original Screenplay for “Her” and relieved that John Ridley won Best Adapted Screenplay for “12 Years a Slave.” However, “Frozen” won Best Animated Feature in another year with so few worthy nominees that the category should have been canceled. With an impressive rendition of Best Original Song “Let It Go,” “Frozen” star Idina Menzel made an unintentional star of Adele Dazeem after presenter John Travolta totally botched Menzel’s name. Really, he was not close.

Speaking of proximity: Host Ellen DeGeneres made multiple references to Jonah Hill’s penis, which he (Jonah Hill, not his penis) minded only slightly less than Liza Minnelli minded being called a man. DeGeneres’ opening monologue was surprisingly mean-spirited—I’m all for teasing the stars, but mocking their lack of time in college seems cheap and unnecessary. Few people make it in Hollywood, and it’s risky to pursue that line of work instead of an education. But these are the ones who made it, FYI.

Also questionable was a montage of real heroes portrayed in Hollywood that seemed to equate Jackie Robinson and Abraham Lincoln with Sandra Bullock’s character in “The Blind Side.” Much happier was presenter Bill Murray acknowledging his late writer/co-star Harold Ramis and Darlene Love, featured in Best Documentary Feature winner “20 Feet From Stardom,” earning a standing ovation after singing on stage.

That was nice and perhaps spontaneous. To DeGeneres’ credit, she also attempted to inject some impulsiveness into what’s often a very long, very stiff night, taking a picture with as many huge movie stars as possible in a (successful) effort to create the most-retweeted tweet ever and passing out pizza delivered to the theater—making sure to get some to pregnant “Scandal” star Kerry Washington.

For a ceremony always in danger of taking itself too seriously, these moments of lightness reminded everyone that the Oscars don’t have to come off as the most important thing in the world, even if it’s tempting to treat them that way. Not that we ever get worked up about them, right?

Men rule the red carpet at the 2014 Oscars

By Dana Moran | REDEYE

It's not very often that the men on the red carpet really make us say YOWZA, but Sunday night at the Oscars, they were having a moment. Here are some of our favorite looks. DAMORAN@TRIBUNE.COM | @REDEYEDANA
GETTY IMAGES, MCT, REUTERS/PHOTOS

JARED LETO

Oh yeah, we can get down with this weirdness.

MATTHEW MCCONAUGHEY

It's a true testament to McConaughey's devotion to his roles that he can look so terrible because DAMN this man is hot. Just a gentleman to the max.

MICHAEL B. JORDAN
I've never picked a man as my red-carpet fave before. Then again, Michael B. Jordan has never absolutely slayed it like this. The magic is in the details here—the cool man-necklace (?) and shoe tops.

PHARRELL WILLIAMS
Well, we knew something weird was going to happen with Pharrell. And to be fair, we haven't seen a man's legs in public in a really long time.

Anne Hathaway's dress
Huge, HUGE improvement over last year, even though this does look a little like pop-can pull tabs.

Now THAT'S a pop of color.

Lupita Nyong'o's dress
Going with soft and ethereal was the perfect idea for this night.

Vera defends Norma

'Bates Motel' star Farmiga has nothing but admiration for her psycho character

SHOW PATROL

Curt Wagner

» @showpatrol

The "cocktail of madness and maternity that is Norma Bates" may seem like a psycho, but "Bates Motel" star Vera Farmiga defends her character.

"I admire her tenacious love for her child," the Emmy nominee told me during a conference call for the show's second season. "She goes to extreme lengths to give her child the life that she imagines for him. And that is really valiant to me."

In the first season of A&E's modern-day "Psycho" prequel, those lengths included moving across the country to run a motel in White Pine Bay, Ore., just to give oddball Norman (Freddie Highmore) a better life. Oh, and she lied, seduced, cajoled and even killed to protect him.

"Yes, there is the flip side of Norma Bates. Her hardware is working; her software is a bit faulty," Farmiga admitted, laughing. "Look, she does wrap Norman in bubble wrap all the time."

"This is a story, after all, about family dysfunction. ... For me, the name of the game is to present to you a woman who lives every day in the trenches of maternity, and also in the trenches of her own stubbornness and denial."

An uptick in the motel's bookings may have Norma feeling more optimistic as the new season begins at 8 p.m. Monday, but she'll circle the wagons even closer when a series of stressors exacerbate Norma's own neuroses. Construction on the bypass that threatens to stop traffic to her motel is proceeding. Norman is spending way too much time in his basement taxidermy workshop. Her estranged brother, Caleb Calhoun (Kenny Johnson), comes knocking on her door, which Farmiga said will bring up "poisonous feelings that she has [that] are embedded so deep in her psyche."

And there's the question of whether Norman killed his high school teacher, Miss Watson (Keegan Connor Tracy).

Despite meeting Christine Heldens (Rebecca Creskoff), her first friend outside her relationship with Norman, and being open to romance with George Heldens (Michael Vartan), Norma still is preoccupied with Norman.

"Imagine it for yourself,"

Farmiga said, "the faint-heartedness, the doom, when you discover or suspect that there's something not quite right neurologically with your child. It's not a job for the faint-hearted, so every ounce of energy is her struggle with raising Norman as a typical child, doing it as single parent."

Farmiga believes Norma is doing the best she can. The actress, who with her musician husband Renn Hawkey has two children, 5-year-old son Finn and 3-year-old daughter Gita, says Norma's negative qualities help her to be a better parent.

Being a parent and wife, she added, keeps her grounded and relaxed while playing Norma.

"There's so much pardon from work in the love of my husband and children," she said. "I'm a very lucky woman. My home life is storybook. My kids are so cool. And my husband is so hot and gorgeous and cool and loving. But honestly I just fall into their arms. And it's all good."

“She clings to the one man that has been her protector, her confidant, her consolation, the light in her life. And it is Norman. And she's totally too involved. And she's unable to cut the cord.”

Beck seeks different sound on new album

Los Angeles Times

By the time that Beck Hansen finished his lush, melancholy new record, "Morning Phase," he had become so consumed by the process that he says he'd caused brain damage.

"I've heard each song about six or seven thousand times, to the point where it's burned a hole, neurologically, in my auditory system," the 43-year-old songwriter said.

Recorded in Nashville, Paris, London and L.A. over seven intense months, "Morning Phase" is the artist's 12th album and first studio album since he hit 40, and it sounds it.

Pensive, smooth, filled with rich Southern California harmonies by way of the Beach Boys, Tim Buckley and various ladies and men of the canyon, it's a record that a successful adult man with a wife and two kids, like Beck, would make. It's also one in a line of records that he's crafted, the best known of which is the West Coast cool-rock classic "Sea Change" from 2002, that rein in his beat-based, oft-funky/funny electronic jamz in favor of more traditionally arranged American music.

"I spent the last few records trying to develop, or create some sort of continuity with, earlier records like 'Odelay' and 'Mellow Gold,'" he said. "I purposefully wanted to have songs that worked with those live. 'People like those other records? Well, maybe they'll like this.' So I've tried to cultivate that, but I wouldn't say that that was my natural instinct."

After working at reconciling his many aesthetic interests—and becoming a free agent upon concluding a long business relationship with Geffen and owner Universal—Beck said that "Morning Phase" was a stab at purging his songs of everything but "the most essential, elemental sounds."

"I think we can all accept that acoustic guitar, and a piano, and an upright bass and acoustic drum and strings—they're things that are elemental," he said. "I felt like for the songs to have a kind of particular quality, something that feels like it breathes or has a warmth to it, that those would be the most suited."

The seeds of "Morning Phase" were planted in summer 2012, recalls longtime bassist Justin Meldal-Johnsen. "Beck had these songs, and he's like, it's time to record what he referred to as a quote-unquote acoustic record because he just had no other definition for it."

ROMANCE PLANET

BY JENNIFER SHEPHERD | READ MORE AT LIPSTICKMYSTIC.COM

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20
The moon says to be more practical in your relationship. If your honey isn't paying his or her share of the bills, it's OK to complain. If your partner expects you to do all the child care while you're also trying to keep your career going, ask for help.

Aries March 21-April 19
It's time to be more creative in the bedroom. You and your honey have fallen into a bit of a dull routine. The moon is encouraging you to spice things up. Share some of your secret fantasies with your partner.

Taurus April 20-May 20
You're in a reflective mood, thanks to the sun. You could be thinking about unhealthy behaviors that might have affected your past relationships. Or you may be discovering that childhood influences have had an effect on your adult life.

Gemini May 21-June 21
Soulful Venus is reminding you that it's never too late to meet a soulmate. Even if you haven't been lucky in love before, the planets are bringing you extra romantic energy. Don't be shy about introducing yourself to new people and flirting your socks off.

Cancer June 22-July 22
Jupiter is going direct in your sign after months in retrograde. You'll have a clearer vision of what you really want out of life. And you'll understand what's truly going on in that on-again, off-again relationship.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22
As Venus moves opposite your sign, don't make any sudden romantic moves. Avoid making huge decisions about having a kid or buying a house with your honey.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22
You've been considering different romantic options, and there has been some confusion. Now Mercury is bringing you a clearer head and a stronger sense of determination. Follow your gut.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23
The moon could create some moments of miscommunication. You thought you were scheduled for a 7 p.m. date, but your sweetheart showed up at the restaurant at 6. You were under the impression that you and your partner had broken up; now he or she wants to reunite.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21
You'll feel bolder and more adventurous, thanks to the sun. Maybe you'll finally work up the courage to ask that cutie out for a date. Or perhaps you'll schedule a trip someplace interesting where you can mix and mingle.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21
You could find yourself playing matchmaker this week as Jupiter brings you extra insight and wisdom. Maybe you have two great friends who have never met and you're trying to set them up. Go out of your way to bring fun situations to other people.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19
Jupiter has you questioning what's going on in your love life. If you're involved with someone, you're wondering if you'd be happier being single. If you're on your own, you could be worried if you'll ever meet someone wonderful. Relax.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18
Venus will be in your sign for several weeks. This will make you feel much more mellow about love. No matter what situation you're in, you'll realize that things happen for a reason and you should celebrate this time in your life.

Colt Cabana at Emporium Arcade on Thursday.
TERRENCE ANTONIO JAMES/TRIBUNE

Comeback Cabana

What rejection? You can't keep this pro wrestler down

ABOUT LAST NIGHT

Luis Gomez

» lgomez@tribune.com
» @TribLuis

Pro wrestler Colt Cabana pretends to hurt people for a living. The 33-year-old Deerfield native has been doing it for 15 years, briefly in WWE but mostly on the independent scene. But the punch he delivered to actor Michael Cera's groin in late January while filming a Comedy Central pilot starring Chris Gethard? That wasn't pretend—just an accident.

"[In the bit] I was guarding something everybody was trying to get to ... and accidentally cracked him," Cabana (real name: Scott Colton) said last week while sitting by the window at Emporium Arcade Bar in Wicker Park. Cabana will host his free, wrestling-meets-"Mystery Science Theater 3000" comedy show, "Five Dollar Wrestling," on Thursday at Emporium. "[Cera] was a great sport. He said it was more than OK and [joked], 'It's all for show business.'"

Cabana has become very familiar with show business in recent years. He was a cast member on a wrestling-themed pilot for Fox called "Undisputed" that never got picked up. In 2012 Cabana signed a production deal with Jamie Kennedy Entertainment, but nothing ever came of it.

Cabana saw his lifelong dream come true when he signed with WWE in 2007, only to be let go less than two years later. Cabana later auditioned with WWE for the role of color commentator three times.

"They said no," Cabana said. "I was also supposed to have [a video blog] for wwe.com and they said no to that too. It's hard for me to sit here and say I keep on getting rejected. I don't think it makes me look good."

And yet, this rejection has been a big part of Cabana's growing popularity. In addition to wrestling on the independent scene, Cabana launched his weekly podcast, "The Art of Wrestling," in 2010 and said it now averages around 100,000 downloads per week. In 2011 Cabana released the straight-to-DVD documentary, "The Wrestling Road Diaries," with a sequel scheduled for release in April. He also co-hosts "Five Dollar Wrestling" and a weekly Web series,

"Worst Promo Ever," with Chicago comedian Marty DeRosa.

Cabana and DeRosa will be joined onstage by comedian Ricky Gonzalez during Thursday's show. They'll watch wrestling matches and promos with the audience and poke fun at the cheesy characters and botched wrestling maneuvers. Cabana hopes it can become a monthly event in Chicago.

"I can give up and cry because they don't want me or continue to grow my business and prove them wrong," Cabana said. "It's not the worst thing. I really enjoy representing the independent world."

And I've proven I don't need WWE to be successful. I'm very proud of that." FOR MORE OF CHICAGO'S CELEB NEWS, GO TO CHICAGOTRIBUNE.COM/LUIS.

Robin Thicke

Blurred pines

Oh, the “Blurred Lines” guy JUST MIGHT have a few issues with women? Color us shocked. Robin Thicke, who is separated from his wife Paula Patton, pulled the ultimate sad-bro stunt at a concert in Virginia on Thursday. Eonline.com reports that he told the crowd, “I’m trying to get my girl back” and dedicated his song “Lost Without U” to her. Confidential to Paula: A man who won’t bother spelling out “y-o-u” isn’t worth bothering with.

Next time, Sandler

You can keep your fancy Oscars. We love the Razzies—the Oscars’ smart-ass younger sister who’s super trashy, but, like, in a fun way. “Movie 43” “won” Worst Picture; Will and Jaden Smith won for their terrible turns in “After Earth,” and despite being nominated a zillion times, Adam Sandler’s “Grown Ups 2” came away with nothing. Yeah, we’d forgotten all those movies too.

Crossing over

“Chicago Fire” and “Chicago PD” will join forces for a two-part crossover storyline this season involving a terrorist attack on Chicago, the Tribune’s Luis Gomez reports. Filming has been taking place at the old Sears building in Homan Square and at Cinespace Film Studios on the Near West Side. The storyline is tentatively scheduled to begin on the April 29 episode of “Fire.”

THE DIGIT
$1 billion

That’s how much money “Frozen” is projected to have made by the end of the weekend, the Los Angeles Times reports. Not adjusting for ticket-price inflation, “Frozen” is the second-highest-grossing animated movie ever, behind “Toy Story 3,” and is the top animated non-sequel.

Mayim Bialik

“They’ve seen a Blossom doll, like the Barbie doll. My oldest son used to call it ‘the momma doll.’ He thought every momma had a Barbie doll.”

—“The Big Bang Theory’s” Mayim Bialik. The former child star says she hasn’t told her two young sons about her past, reports people.com.

‘Non-Stop’ money

OK, America, we get it: You like to watch Liam Neeson save the world. “Non-Stop” won the box office this weekend with $30 million; “Son of God” was close behind with $26.5 million, according to Forbes.

Well, isn’t this just our “That ’70s Show” fanfiction come to life. People.com is reporting that Ashton Kutcher, 36, and Mila Kunis are engaged, citing a source close to the couple. Kunis, 30, was seen Thursday with a diamond on her ring finger.
